Application of the Code of Conduct

The standards defined in this Code of Conduct must be observed by both the supplier and their subcontractors with whom the supplier cooperates in the provision of their services to GLOBESY.

2.2.8. Freedom of Association and Collective Bargaining

- We must not prevent employees from associating or joining trade unions, or prohibit them from collective bargaining. We respect employees' rights to freedom of association and collective bargaining.

2.3. Environment

Principle 7: Promotion of preventive approaches to environmental challenges or problems

Principle 8: Undertaking initiatives to promote greater environmental responsibility

Principle 9: Encouraging the development and prioritisation of environmentally-friendly technologies

2.3.1. Personal Commitment

- Each of us has a responsibility to protect the environment, do our part in our work to contribute as much as possible to the restoration of a healthy environment, and minimise the negative impacts of our activities and lifestyles. Only by working together in synergy can we achieve positive change and halt the negative trends of today, which include climate change in particular.
- It is essential to comply with at least the basic principles of environmental care, for example:

Water

- Do not waste water; only let as much water out of the tap as you actually need.
- Use a dishwasher that you run only when it is full.

Plastics

- Minimise your use of plastics, e.g. polythene bags, plastic bags, disposable cups, cutlery, etc.
- Minimise your use of disposable food containers (takeaways); opt to consume food served directly on the plate or food brought from home in your own containers.
- Prefer clean drinking water from tap or water dispensers instead of plastic bottles.

Paper

- Minimise printing of documents, prioritise electronic form.
- If printing documents is essential, use duplex printing.

Air

- Use non-motorised transportation as much as possible (bicycle, walking, scooter).
- Optimise the use of vehicles – if more than one person is travelling in the same direction, they can carpool.

Electricity

- Use mainly daylight to illuminate your interior.
- Prefer energy-saving LED bulbs in your light fixtures.
- Remember to turn off lights in rooms where no one is present or use motion sensor lights, e.g. in toilets, corridors, and stairwells.

Waste

- Encourage recycling and separate waste – paper, plastic, glass, beverage cartons, metal, electronics, and bio-waste.
- Aim to reduce bio-waste, do not waste food, as there are millions of people in the world who do not have any.
- Batteries and accumulators must not end up in municipal waste.
- Dispose of toners (refills for laser printers and photocopiers), cartridges (i.e. refills for inkjet printers), and large appliances by taking them to collection sites or boxes or by taking them back to the manufacturer or retailer or by taking them to the person responsible for waste disposal in your company.
- Do not litter outdoors or anywhere else. Litter belongs in bins and containers only.

2.3.2. Preventive Approach, Risk Management

- We must systematically employ risk assessment, risk management, and risk communication.
- Where there are threats of serious or irreversible harm, the lack of full scientific certainty must not be used as a reason to postpone cost-effective measures to prevent environmental degradation.
- Where there is a reasonable suspicion of harm, decision-makers must apply precautionary measures and consider the degree of uncertainty arising from the scientific assessment.
- Deciding on an “acceptable” level of risk must involve not only scientific and technological assessment and economic cost-benefit analysis but also policy considerations such as public acceptability.

2.3.3. Sustainable Development Promotion

Sustainable development is one that meets the needs of the present generation without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs.

To achieve sustainable development, it is essential to reconcile three key elements: economic growth, social inclusion, and environmental protection.

Environmentally-friendly technologies, as defined in Agenda 21 of the Rio Declaration, should protect the environment, pollute less, use all resources in a more sustainable way, recycle more of their waste and products, and manage their residual waste in a more acceptable way than the technologies they have replaced. They include a variety of cleaner production processes and pollution prevention technologies, as well as end-of-line and monitoring technologies. In addition, they include know-how, processes, goods and services and equipment, as well as organisational and management practices.

- Together, we support sustainable development and strive to participate in the achievement of the UN Sustainable Development Goals.
- We only work with suppliers who comply with the relevant laws in their location, share our values and are committed to building increasingly sustainable practices, products, and solutions.
- We strive to deliver meaningful innovations and create continuous improvement programmes.
- Employees support the development and deployment of environmentally-friendly technologies.

2.3.4. Environmental Responsibility

- Our company's vision, policies, and strategies embrace and promote sustainable development – economic prosperity, environmental quality, and social justice.
- We monitor and evaluate progress in incorporating sustainability principles into business practices, e.g. through environmental management systems.
- We ensure transparency and impartial dialogue with the parties involved.
- GLOBESY, s.r.o. holds the ISO 14001 environmental management system certificate, with recertification every three years.

We also encourage our suppliers to be committed and certified in areas of environmental management.

- Companies covered by the Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive \(CSRD\) are required to report sustainability information.

The CSRD integrates measures to achieve the objectives of the European Green Deal and the Sustainable Finance Action Plan. It introduces a system for assessing the impact of environmental, social, and corporate governance on a company's economic activities.

2.4. Fight against Corruption

Principle 10: We do not tolerate corruption; it is unacceptable in all its forms.

2.4.1. No Corruption is Tolerated

- We conduct ourselves with integrity at all times and build trust in all working and business relationships.
- We do not tolerate any form of corruption, in any degree, from the slightest influence peddling, bribery, to institutionalised bribery.
- We prevent corruption and proactively develop anti-corruption policies to prevent corruption in any environment and interaction, in particular:
- We create and foster an anti-corruption environment.
 - For example, we eliminate redundant formal procedures in our business and promote transparency and open communication at all levels of the organisation.
- We raise employee awareness and strengthen their integrity!
 - For example, we organise training on integrity principles, ethical conduct, conflict of interest, corruption prevention, and zero tolerance for corruption.

Note:

Integrity is a key ethical value that relates to honesty, truthfulness, and consistency of character. Integrity represents honest and ethical behaviour, whether or not it is observed by others.

- We encourage whistleblowing on corruption and unethical behaviour in the organisation.
 - We provide whistleblowers with the assurance that they will be protected, kept anonymous, and that reporting will not cause them personal hardship or negative repercussions at work or among colleagues.
- We pay adequate attention to the actions of our employees and those of our business partners and suppliers.

2.4.2. Anti-Corruption Policy for Employees

- Employees must be aware of the importance of their attitudes and statements to public opinion. Their behaviour contributes to the creation and consolidation of the reputation of the employer and the local authorities, in particular by setting a positive personal example in their attitudes towards public affairs and public officials.
- Employees, any interested persons or workers must follow the anti-corruption policies:
 - They shall not misuse their employment, position, profession, or office for their own benefit or for the benefit of another person.
 - They shall not offer, give, or accept bribes or any undue advantage, either directly or indirectly (through third parties); nor encourage others to do so.
 - They shall not solicit or accept gifts, favours or other benefits which could genuinely, or even apparently, influence the decision in a matter or impair impartiality or judgement in a decision, impair professionalism, or which could be considered remuneration for the work which is their duty. Nor shall they induce third parties to provide gifts which might interfere with the proper performance of their duties.
 - They shall not avoid and deal appropriately with situations in which their own interests might conflict with their work duties, commitments, or responsibilities.
 - They shall deal with situations where corrupt conduct is identified or suspected, in accordance with the law, with the employer's designated person or directly with the competent law enforcement authorities.

2.4.3. Avoidance of Conflicts of Interest

- In all our business relationships, we are obliged to avoid conflicts of interest or any situation that could give the appearance of one.
- Our suppliers are obliged to inform us of any situation that could lead to a conflict of interest, or that creates a conflict of interest.
- Employees, any interested persons or workers must not initiate or encourage these actions:
 - Inappropriately influence any employment process, in particular recruitment of new employees, promotion of employees, remuneration of employees (e.g. favouring family members, friends), etc.
 - Favour suppliers, business partners, and customers with whom they have a friendly or family relationship.
 - Influence and manipulate public or commercial competition in favour of oneself or one's family.
 - Harm their employer in a competitive environment by their actions for their own benefit.
 - Use GLOBESY's corporate property and facilities, including email accounts and the GLOBESY brand name, for personal gain.

2.4.4. Receipt of Gifts and Hospitality

- Gifts and hospitality may only be accepted if they do not pose any risk of undue influence and are appropriate, e.g. as a common business courtesy and as a thank you for previous cooperation – Christmas and New Year gifts, promotional marketing items, etc.
- We ask our suppliers not to provide or accept any offers, gifts, or hospitality that are intended to influence the recipient's decisions. Before offering or accepting any such offer or gift, our suppliers must verify that they are not in violation of the recipient's internal policies or applicable laws and regulations.
- Offering gifts and hospitality to government officials and political parties requires particular care. Some countries have specific restrictions on the value and nature of gifts and hospitality that can be accepted by their officials. Even small gifts of food or hospitality could be seen as attempts to improperly influence decision-making.
- Gifts and hospitality are given with no expectation of return, or reciprocity.
- Gifts in the form of cash, vouchers, stocks, bonds, commissions, or other monetary values are not acceptable under any circumstances.

2.4.5. Fair Competition

- We must not engage in any activity that restricts, distorts, or prevents competition. We observe all rules of lawful competition in our activities and business endeavours.
 - We must not enter into agreements that restrict competition.
 - We must not abuse any dominant market position.
 - We must not create illegal business mergers that could significantly affect competition.
- Do not engage in any negotiations with competitors that may constitute illegal anti-competitive behaviour, e.g. on the following topics: pricing policy, launching a new product or service on the market, sharing or dividing markets, refusing to supply customers, coordinated access to suppliers, distributors, or customers.
- We must not attempt to obtain advantages through fraudulent behaviour and improper means or allow others to obtain them in this way, e.g. information about competitors through friends.
- Company employees must not act (or encourage others to act) in breach of their duties or seek to obtain undue advantage for the company.

2.4.6. Prohibition of Dishonest Schemes

- All business practices must be transparent.
- It is prohibited to declare false or fictitious statements or to receive and make unreported payments.
- Company employees and contractors must not falsify, conceal, or destroy financial or other records to avoid investigation or discovery during legal proceedings.
- Company employees must not issue or participate in the issuance of false documents concealing improper payments or illegal, unethical conduct. Such conduct may qualify as a criminal offence.

In support of the fight against corruption, GLOBESY, s.r.o. shall report any identified and verifiable suspicion of corruption to the relevant government authorities. It commits itself to act with integrity and in accordance with the fair functioning of the market economy. Its behaviour will in no way jeopardise the general trust in public institutions, the undermining of which threatens the foundations of democracy.

- Authorised persons may only carry out authorised processing operations with personal data and only on the basis of written instructions from the employer or the controller.
- Authorised persons are obliged to comply with the internal rules and directives of the controller governing the protection of information and the security of information systems when working on the controller's premises and facilities.

3.1.3. Security Incidents Management

- Employees are required to comply with all established security measures for the protection of personal data and the security of the employer's IS.
- Employees are also required to strictly follow the employer's health and safety and fire protection procedures for accidents, malfunctions, and other emergencies.
- Employees are required to immediately report any security incident or identified information system vulnerability to the employer and take prompt corrective action in accordance with the employer's security procedures.
- The employer is obliged to keep a record of security incidents and the solutions applied, as well as to take additional measures to prevent security incidents.

3.2. Confidentiality

- Every employee is obliged to maintain the confidentiality, secrecy, and commercial and telecommunications secrecy of all business data and information with which they have become acquainted in the course of their employment and work activities.
- The confidentiality obligation shall continue indefinitely, i.e. even after termination of employment.
